Marshall's Cigar Dream Coming True

New York—Thomas R. Marshall's dream of a good five-cent cigar seemed coming true today.

Internal revenue figures showed that of the 622,938,344 cigars sold during November, 326,597,340 were nickel ones. Total cigar sales had dropped since November, 1928, when 630,530,692 were sold; but only 311,364,175 of them were five-cent ones.

Quantity production of "cigars," which enables the manufacturer to improve quality by cutting down over head costs, is credited by tobacco men with causing the increase in the nickel cigar sales.

DRY SHAKEUP IS PROMISED BY PRESIDENT

QUICK ACTION BY ADMINISTRATION FOLLOWS BORAH'S BLAST

Washington—President Hoover is planning a shake-up in prohibition enforcement personnel and other measures of a broad character to improve enforcement as a result of renewed agitation by Congressional dries, led by Senator Borah of Idaho.

The measures to be taken other than personnel changes, will be along lines recommended by the President's Law Enforcement Commission in reports to be issued soon after the New Year. The Treasury also will submit recommendations to Congress, the first of which was announced as unifications of border patrol agencies and limitation of ports of entry on both the Mexican and Canadian borders to "bottle up" the borders.

The recent agitation came to a climax today when the President had Borah, his staunch prohibition campaigner of a year ago, but now chief critic of the Administration's policy, at the White House for lunch. They talked about the prohibition situation and specifically it is understood, about the Idaho Senator's recent sweeping condemnation of enforcement personnel.

Borah Is Silent

Borah would not discuss the conference, and it was said at the White House only that the President and the Idaho Senator had discussed prohibition. The invitation was issued Tuesday before Borah made his attack on the Administration, George Akerson, the President's Secretary, said.

The meeting between the two men who have drifted apart, on other issues, followed the vigorous assault by Borah and other dries which yesterday evoked replies from Attorney General Mitchell and Prohibition Commissioner Doran and today brought an announcement of border enforcement plans from Assistant Secretary of Treasury Mills.

Fire Damages House

Bergdoll, U. S. Slacker, Buys 'Hush' Refuge

Berlin—The headquarters of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, American millionaire draft dodger, are in the village of Hueffenhardt, near Mosbach, in the beautiful and hilly wine country between Heidelberg and Heilbronn, but right now Bergdoll is away. A friend give assurance that he is in Switzerland, where he will remain until after the new year.

The entire village of Hueffenhardt, headed by Bergdoll's distant cousins and brother, has appointed itself a voluntary bodyguard for the exiled American. The entire village is trembling with fear that some day a new attack will be made by Americans to capture Bergdoll and it has taken all precautions to prevent his capture. There is something like the old time fealty in their attitude to the American living in their midst.

Villagers Lie To Press

The village of Hueffenhardt looks to him for help when it is hard up. In return it helps keep him amused, goes hunting and fishing with him, plays cards with him, drinks with him, lies for him when inquiring reporters turn up, and will fight tooth and nail for him upon the slightest provocation.

The village greets you with surly distrust and watches every step you take if you ask for Bergdoll. "We have not heard from him for two years," every villager says blithely, but that is not true.

Nearby Mosbach has heard Bergdoll telephone from Hueffenhardt. Its inhabitants have met him in the nearby countryside all through the summer and fall.

Pilot Happy With Two Smashed Jaws

Informed that his injuries were not as serious as they were believed to be at first, Thomas Hill, 26, of Kalama-zoo, Mich., last night viewed philosophically the crash of the air mail plane which he was flying from Chicago to Detroit Tuesday night. Hill is in St. Anthony's hospital at Michigan City, with both jaws broken, his face lacerated and his back injured, but he observed that it "isn't such a bad Christmas after all," when physicians told him he would recover.

Hill crashed in a snowstorm on the farm of Fred Banwart near Michigan City, when he tried to land after failing to find the Chesterton landing field light. Banwart seeing the flares, which Hill dropped and hearing the drone of the faltering motor, pulled Hill from the wreckage of the plane and took him to the hospital. Michigan City policemen saved the seven bags of mail which Hill was carrying.

Bridge Body To Build Roadway

At the special session of the City Council Thursday night, by an unanimous vote, the council passed a resolution granting to the Louisville Municipal Bridge Company the privilege of constructing a twenty-foot concrete emergency roadway from the approach of the bridge on Illinois avenue down Fourth street to Indiana avenue, where it connects with a concrete highway. This improvement will be at no cost to the city and the abutting property owners. The roadway will be so constructed in the center of the street, so that in the future additional sections may be added to it, if the property owners desire it.

The work on this improvement will be started immediately. The streets in the vicinity of the bridge are badly in need of repair.
